

ABSTRACT

A filmy object containing an electrically conductive polymer, characterized in that (1) the electrically conductive polymer is one obtained by the electrolytic polymerization method and (2) upon 5 immersion in a good solvent, the filmy object expands to come to have a film surface area larger by 30% or more than the film surface area before the immersion.